“SO YOU GOT A B...WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?”
THE VALUE OF GRADES IN THE 21ST CENTURY

Do grades really matter?
Educational experts will say it is to improve learning and teaching; students will argue that grading can be subjective, inconsistent, and unfair. What purpose do grades serve?

PRESENTED BY
SHAFIK DHARAMSI, PH.D.
Dean, College of Health Sciences

Wednesday, Feb. 7, 2018
5:30-6:30 p.m.
HSN Building, Room 217

The purpose of the Dean’s Dialogues series is to give College of Health Sciences’ students the chance to share ideas and promote issues with Dean Dharamsi, college administrators, faculty and staff, and invited guests. The focus is to listen and engage.

Topics will range from those important around the college to around the world. They will include ethics, global literacy, cultural competence and social responsibility. The format will be subject to change, but could include a presentation, panel discussion, or question-and-answer session.

The location will alternate between the on-campus Health Sciences and Nursing Building and the off-campus Campbell Building.
