Need a customized training program?

We can work with you to provide a unique solution to help you enhance your team’s performance and advance your organization’s priorities. To learn more, email us at p3cbt@utep.edu.
What makes you passionate about your subject area? And about teaching it?
My subject area is IT and I enjoy teaching it because it is my area of focus in my regular career; I find that students have a huge advantage when they learn this field. I am passionate about helping my students advance and improve their lives. I have always been involved with organizations that focus on teaching sectors of the population that have more needs and fewer resources. I enjoy knowing that my students will be better off [for having taken these courses] and I love hearing from them when they enjoy success.

How many years of teaching experience do you have? And how many have you taught with Professional and Public Programs?
I have taught this subject for 20 years. I am new to [this] department but I can say that I am very proud of being part of the team and the team is made up of great people.

What is your favorite thing about teaching these courses? And the most challenging thing?
My favorite thing about these courses is showing students that they can complete them. Most begin with doubt because they see IT as a difficult thing. As soon as they figure out that they can do it, you can see their confidence skyrocket. The most challenging thing about this coursework is making it exciting and engaging.

If there is one thing you want your students to learn from your class, what would that be?
That they can do anything if they really dedicate themselves to it.

What would you tell potential participants who are thinking of enrolling in your course but are not quite sure?
To trust in the process and let me take them on the journey. They have the potential, and they can succeed if they dedicate themselves. This is an opportunity to be better, both financially and personally.
