WHY CREATIVE WRITING AT UTEP?

The online Master of Fine Arts in Creative Writing at UTEP is a program for serious writers with the potential for great literary significance. It is a highly competitive, one-of-a-kind program that's single-minded in its focus to help students become better writers at their own pace.

Our faculty is filled with names you will recognize including Andrea Cote Botero, José de Piérola, Tim Z. Hernandez, Sasha R. Pimentel, Jeff Sirkin, Lex Williford, Sylvia A. Zéleny and Daniel Chacón. We currently have two visiting faculty members: Jessica Powers and JD Pluecker, who teach children/YA lit and poetry respectively. In the past, we have had award-winning writers who have served as visiting faculty and shared their expertise with our students: the list includes Natalie Diaz, Laurie Ann Guerrero, Heather Hartley and Carolina Ebeid. Our students become part of an exclusive community that includes well-known literary personalities and published authors as they learn the practical skills needed to hone their craft.

UTEP'S MASTER'S DEGREE IN CREATIVE WRITING IS PERFECT FOR STUDENTS WHO

- Work full-time and want to go on to pursue a career in writing or teaching at the university level
- Are serious writers who want to publish
- Need to learn strategies to become better writers
- Want to be a part of an international community of writers without borders

We also offer an optional low-residency opportunity every summer in Europe, in such cities as London, Paris, and Madrid. The UTEP Career Center provides graduates with resources to help them pursue their career goals.
