Local school practitioners, as well as those across the nation are increasingly tasked with educating a growing number of emergent bilingual students, despite having had limited training in this area during their teacher preparation. The Master’s in Bilingual Special Education helps address this gap. It provides a set of courses designed to integrate interdisciplinary scholarship from applied linguistics, special education, and bilingual education, thereby providing comprehensive and research-based instructional strategies and approaches. It also undertakes an equitable approach that recognizes the cultural and linguistic assets of emergent bilingual students and empowers teachers to work towards creating a more culturally and linguistically responsive and inclusive educational system that ensures the success of all students.

This degree is perfect for special education teachers; general education teachers with an interest in supporting students with disabilities; individuals with disabilities interested in advocacy; and bilingual or non-bilingual individuals interested in culturally responsive teaching.

There is a high demand for dually certified teachers in special education and bilingual education.

Students in this program will
• Gain the tools to identify and address the unique challenges that culturally and linguistically diverse students may encounter in the classroom
• Focus on treating bilingualism as an asset/strength
• Help improve outcomes for students across the lifespan from early childhood to adulthood and lead the way for them to become leaders in their communities and engage in culturally responsive practices.
• Acquire skills in the following areas:
  • Implementing curricula, lessons and assessments
  • Collaborating with special educators, general educators, administrators, families and community agencies
  • Leadership and advocacy
  • Implementing research and professional development/training
  • Enjoy a unique curriculum that includes
  • Practical assignments with applications to schools and community partnerships
  • A mix of readings, videos, podcasts, and multi-media resources
  • Engagement with classmates from diverse backgrounds, who speak a variety of languages, and who have experience engaging with students/families from diverse backgrounds

Types of jobs students hold after graduation include:
• Special education teacher
• General education teacher
• Instructional Leader
• Administrator
• Community Leader

Note: Students in this program, who currently work as educators may be eligible for TEACH grant funding (https://www.utep.edu/student-affairs/financialaid/types-of-aid/grants.html)
