Rationale

This is a new course that will be cross-listed in Sociology and Anthropology. It will be listed as an elective option for majors and minors in Sociology and Anthropology. It will also be listed as a minor elective for Native American and Indigenous Studies as well as a Liberal Arts Block Elective option. It responds to student demand for a greater range of elective course offerings in our department. It is also an area of expertise for one of our full-time lecturers. The faculty member teaching the course has consulted with Religious Studies, and there is an interest in cross-listing this course for the Religious Studies minor.

Course Syllabus

COURSE SYLLABUS

Title: Religion and Culture

Course Description:

This course explores the complex interplay between religion and culture across diverse societies and historical periods. Through readings and discussions grounded in anthropology, sociology, history and religious studies, the course investigates how religious ideas, practices, and institutions influence and are influenced by cultural traditions, identities, and perspectives. The course will use themes such as ritual, symbolism, mythology, witchcraft, magic, syncretism, science to explore belief and spirituality outside the limits of organized religions.

Learning Objectives:

Recognize and explain major theories and concepts related to the study of religion and culture.

Explain the strengths and weaknesses of adopting an anthropological perspective toward religion.

Examine religious practices within their specific cultural settings.

Compare the ways in which various societies understand and incorporate religion into everyday life.

Assess how religion intersects with areas such as science.

Strengthen critical thinking and writing abilities through participation in discussions, group projects, and completion of assignments.

Required Texts:

The course does not have a required textbook. The instructor will post selected chapters and scholarly articles on Blackboard; the preliminary reading schedule is provided below.

Course Assignments:

• Class Discussions (worth 10%):

The discussion activities will ensure a better understanding of the reading materials, in-class videos and guest lectures. Each discussion will be graded individually, based on the quality of your contributions and your participation in class and group activities.

• Two (2) Individual Papers (worth 15% each):

You are required to submit two individual papers, with each paper contributing 15% to your final grade.

• One (1) Group Project (worth 15%):

During the semester, you will work on a group project and present it to the class. This project will account for 15% of your final grade.

• Three (3) Exams (worth 15% each):

Over the semester, you will take three essay exams, with each exam counting for 15% of your final grade. The exam questions will cover assigned readings, during-class discussions and lectures.

Grading:

90-100 = A

80-89.9 = B

70-79.9 = C

60-69.9 = D

59.9 and below = F

SAMPLE ASSIGNMENTS

Sample Exam Questions (these types of questions will be used for all the course exams)

- 1. Eric Wolf cites the Virgin of Guadalupe as an example of a "Master symbol" to support his argument. Can you provide another example of a multivocal "Master symbol," or share a personal experience with one?
- 2. What is the "spirit of capitalism, according to Max Weber? What is Weber's understanding of American worldview?
- 3. What does Durkheim mean by collective effervescence? How does it manifest in religious rituals? Please provide at least one example.

Group Project Assignment Sample:

- Step 1: Form Your Groups. Groups should be comprised of three to four students. Select Your Research Topic. You are required to choose a topic and to transform it into a research question. Be sure to follow the guidelines that explain how to create a research model.
- Step 2: Do Your Research. Research facts about your topic. Clearly outline the scientific evidence that helps answer the research question you asked.
- Step 3: Develop a 7-minute Power Point Presentation that summarizes the scientific evidence that supported your answers to the research question.

Note: Be sure that every group member plays an equally important role in developing and presenting your research.
